"What's a Picture Worth?"

By Beth Daniel, Partisover Ranch

Spring is just around the corner and for most GGCPA members it's time to start marketing your fall calves. Whether you are selling through an organized sale or off the farm, a good photo of those calves can be the most valuable marketing tool available. With a digital camera and e-mail, you can literally have a photo of your calf anywhere in the country in a matter of minutes. However, even a simple disposable camera will be adequate provided the subject is properly lighted and in shape to photograph.

Do's and Don'ts:

1. Have your calves clipped, clean and in suitable flesh. The best pose in the world won't do your calf justice if he is not properly prepared.
2. Choose a location that is clean and mowed. It needs to be level or gently sloping up hill to the camera. Plan to have the sun at your back when you shoot. Keep background objects to a minimum. You may need to construct a long rectangular pen.
3. Shoot on a bright, sunny day. Either mid-morning or mid-afternoon is best. Avoid the sun when it is directly over head because of lower body shadows. Think about having the photo-side fully lighted.
4. You will need one person behind the calf to move him forward and someone in front of the calf to stop him and get his attention. The camera man should be broad-side and eye-level to the calf. Shooting from just slightly behind the calf (off the hip) can add to balance and angularity, but avoid ever shooting off the shoulder (focal point shoulder.)
5. The ideal pose is to have a slight separation on the front feet (2-3 inches) with the foot on the camera side forward. The calf's weight should be up over the front end. The rear camera side foot should be back at an angle that squares the hip up and takes the set out of the rear leg. The opposite rear foot should be forward at a natural looking offset. The head should be up looking straight away with the ears pitched forward.
6. Get as close to the calf as he will allow to shoot. Try to fill the lens with calf, but be careful not to cut off noses and feet. A telephoto lens really helps because it allows you to back off from the calf and not crowd him. If the calf is halter-broken you'll probably want to take the picture on the halter. Just remember to back out of the picture before shooting.
7. Some hints for getting the calf's attention would be:
 - Use feed in a pan held up high to pull the calf a step forward and get his head and ears up.
 - Place a cap or rag on the end of a show stick and dangle in front of his face.
 - Use a noise maker or tape recorder.
 - Act like a fool and make strange noises.
 - If the calf is very nervous he'll be attentive. Work back off of him and don't crowd him.

As mentioned, it is not necessary to have expensive camera equipment. It is important to plan ahead and be ready for a photo shoot. Keep in mind that a photo must be as good as or better than your subject or you are only defeating your objective. Who knows what a really complimentary picture can be worth in dollars!

Requirements for Calves to be GCCPA Tagged:

It's important that all members know the requirements for a calf to be tagged with the official GCCPA eartag. The rules are listed below:

1. Calves must be bred and born on a member's farm, or
2. Owned and born on other premises (example - you own a cow that is at an ET center in Georgia or another state), or
3. Calves are eligible from the purchase of bred cows or frozen embryos only if bred cows or embryos are purchased from another GCCPA member, and the new owner shall be listed as Breeder on the GCCPA point sheet.
4. Only dues paying members are eligible to purchase tags. (Exhibitors can not pay dues and buy tags for an individual they purchase the calf from.)
